O que está sendo aprovado

Este documento aprova os temas, os títulos e a página de destino de cada um dos 40 artigos do programa editorial de novembro. Não é a aprovação da redação final: cada artigo será produzido depois, em lotes de 4, e passará por revisão antes de publicar.

A lógica é simples: cada artigo existe para alimentar uma página que já vende (as money pages), criando a malha de links internos que o benchmark mostrou ser o verdadeiro gargalo. Nenhum artigo compete com a página-mãe — ele empurra autoridade para ela.

Padrão de cada artigo: resposta direta nas primeiras 40–60 palavras, 12 a 15 subtítulos em formato de pergunta, 3 a 5 tabelas de dados, FAQ com schema, 5 a 8 links internos com âncora exata e autoria da equipe editorial. Preços aparecem apenas em faixas típicas de NJ/NYC, sempre com aviso de que variam por metragem, frequência e contrato.

Como ler as tabelas

Volume: estimativa mensal da busca principal. "—" indica tema de cauda longa ou sem volume confiável — e nesses casos o artigo se justifica por intenção de compra e por sustentar a página-mãe, não por volume.
